TORONTO, Feb. 18, 2015- AM STUDIO released its new collection of customizable lighting at the Interior Design Show in late January of this year. They marked their 7th year exhibiting at the influential design fair by unveiling innovative lighting solutions that are hand crafted in Canada.

The show stopper was the Blooming Post Lamp, a floor-to-ceiling light designed by the studio in collaboration with Ontario-based glass artist Karli Sears. The light is a modern take on the glass and metal floor lamps popular in the 1970's.

A practical and artistic lighting solution for small spaces, the light begins with a stretch rod that fits any ceiling height. Along the rod sits 12 hand blown glass orbs that shine light in different angles. The orbs are available in 5 colors- white, bronze, smoke, sea green, and clear.

The Blooming Post Lamp can be wired from the ceiling if a junction box is present, or plugged in from the bottom into a nearby outlet. The lamp is ideal in a corner of a living room or study, or used as a bedside lamp.

As with all of AM STUDIO's lighting, the Blooming Post Lamp is made to order and is fully customizable- from the color of the rod to the size and color of the glass orbs. The light can be fitted with LED bulbs, creating an efficient and environmentally friendly lighting solution. Different lighting configurations with the glass orbs are currently in development by the studio, including a chandelier version with industrial details.
